

Homework Project – Family Album

After Christmas we will be studying the book 'If All the World Were...' by Joseph Coelho. The book promises to explore themes focused on relationships, love and loss. The book is about the strong bond between a grandparent and a grandchild.

We would like you to create your own family album that profiles key people in your life. We would like the design and layout of your family album to capture the memories you have with each individual.

E.g. it could include photographs of grandparents, other special relatives and memories of times spent together. This could take the form of drawings, photographs and pieces of writing.

You could write about:

- Holidays spent with this special person
- What you like best about this person
- What you like doing with this person
- What is special about this person
- Information about this person's life

This homework will replace the usual reading comprehension sheet.

Please return your homework by Monday 15th January.

Many thanks
